World's Champs and Nationals Battle Ten Innings--Game Is Called Off

Jack Barry's Injury

Mackmen Attribute Failure to Win Yesterday Due to John C. Davidson Makes Missing Cog in $100,000 Infield-Other Sporting News and Gossip.

By WILLIAM PEET.

The loss of Jack Barry to the Athletics cost the ball game yester day, according to several members of the world's champions. Barry was spiked by Danny Moeller at Shibe Park last week and will not be able to play for a fortnight or more. Take a player of Barry's caliber out of the inner works of a ball club and his loss is bound to be felt. Yesterday's game was a sample

In the fifth inning Wally Smith hit a short fly to left field. Rube Oldring came in full tilt, and the ball just grazed the tips of his fingers. Shortstop Orr could not get back after the ball or, rather, did not attempt to do so, and a run counted.

Had Barry been in the game, the? chances are he would have raced back and made the catch. The Starts to Hit and Athletics, to a man, think so.

More than three hours was consumed in playing ten innings at Florida Park yesterday, yet there was so much going on, so many plays and hair-raising situa-tions, that it is doubtful if a single fan left the grounds until the last man was

Danny Moeller, still suffering from the accident which threw his left arm out of place during Thursday's game, was not in uniform yesterday. His place was taken by Acosta, but the Cuban was replaced by Al Williams in the fifth because the opposition used a left-hand twirler. Later Williams was taken out and Gedeon substituted because Griff did not like the looks of so many visiting left-handed batters coming up, fearing that Williams' arm might not be strong enough to snipe base runners at the plate on hits to right

Joe Engel pitched one inning, the ninth It was while Engel was in the box that the Nationals came through with that triple play, and in this inning both Foster and McBride made errors which put the men on the bases, yet these miscues turned out to be blessings in disguise. McInnes was on third, Daley on second, and Kopf on first, with Jack Lapp at bat. Lapp hit a ball that struck near the plate on fair territory, bounced in the air and fell into Henry's giove. It was a simple matter for the catcher while standing on the plate to force McInnes, and throw to Gandil ahead of Lapp. Daley, who attempted to score, was caught red-handed on the return throw form of Lapp. on the return throw from Gandil, for the

In the first place Engel could not be blamed for the rival players being on the bases, but it is also significant that the only thing in the world which could half those demon singgers was a triple play and that is just what happened.

The third game of the series will be played this afterneon starting promptly at 2 o'clock. Grill will probably pitch either Jim Shaw or Joe Engel, while Mack's choice lies between Wycloff and Shawkey, or both.

Fourth Sinteen worked one inning and fanned two of the men who faced him. His book was certainly in working order, Oldring biting on two of them, which he missed a mile.

All the argument about the ball the argument about the ball which Daley threw to the stands in the sixth avoiled nothing. McBride and Griffith claimed that the ball hit the pile of Arbletic bats but the umps ruled otherwise, and refused to allow Williams to score.

ten thrilling rounds. Pitchers with reputations were laid low. Both teams hit the ball hard, while errors, wild pitches, daring base running and bril-
